December 23rd 1968

Gentlemen:

In his letter of 16 August 1967 welcoming me as a new member of the staff of reviewers for M.R., Professor Berberian invited good communication between us. I have reviewed 22 papers since starting in September 1967 and, except for four papers that got delayed by my move to the Netherlands, I have returned every one of these papers within one day of getting them. Why don't I get any more papers to review?

At present, Professor de Bruijn and I are writing a book on Pólya's enumeration theory; I know Professor de Bruijn hates reviewing these papers, and I have to study all this stuff to write our book anyway, so why don't you send me papers on Pólya's Theorem? I still want to review 2 to 4 papers a month, so please send them or explain why you can't.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. David A. Klamer.
